Generations For Peace (GFP) is a leading global non-profit peace-building organisation with its headquarters in Amman, Jordan.

GFP is dedicated to sustainable conflict transformation at the grass roots in communities, by promoting youth leadership, community empowerment, active tolerance, and responsible citizenship.

GFP is a volunteer movement, empowering, mentoring and supporting volunteers to be change-makers to create a better future in their own communities.

Since 2007, GFP has trained and mentored more than

With our support, their ongoing programmes address local issues of conflict and violence, and have touched the lives of more than in the Middle East, Africa, Asia, and Europe.

GFP uses sport as an entry point to engage with youth, and our carefully-facilitated sport-based games provide a vehicle for integrated education and behaviour change. GFP is the only peace-through-sport organisation officially recognised by the International Olympic Committee.

In addition to our sport-based approaches, GFP has also developed arts, advocacy, dialogue, and empowerment activities to support conflict transformation with children, youth, and adults in different contexts.

GFP has developed a unique curriculum and cascading model for training carefully-selected volunteer leaders of youth, and mentoring and supporting them to implement sustained activities for children, youth and adults to address issues of cultural and structural violence in their own community. Contexts include: inter-tribal, inter-ethnic, and inter-religious violence; gender inequality; post-conflict trauma response, reconciliation and reintegration; exclusion of minorities including IDPs, refugees and people with a disability; and challenges of integration in multi-cultural societies. Conflict sensitivity, and the full participation and empowerment of girls and women, are integrated into our approach.

GFP is committed to the robust measurement and evaluation of our programmes to support continual learning and innovation, to identify and promote good practices, and to demonstrate impact and sustainability. The GFP Institute leads on undertaking programmatic research, independently or collaboratively with leading academic institutions, such as the University of Oxford. The Institute also conducts collaborative applied research projects to help advance the broader peace-building field, and allocates various research grants and scholarships. The Institute's in-depth research serves as an evidence-base to assist in crafting and maintaining high quality tailor-made programming; a tool to gain support from local stakeholders, donors or academics; and a knowledge-base to inform our educational and training materials as well as strengthen the capacity of our staff, volunteers, and local partners.

Founded by HRH Prince Feisal Al Hussein of Jordan in 2007, GFP is currently ranked "#34" in the Top 500 NGOs in the World" by NGO Advisor (making us the #2 ranked peace-building NGO in the world, and the top-ranked Jordanian NGO). Their ranking is based on an assessment of innovation, impact, and sustainability. In simple terms, over the last ten years GFP has achieved rapid global growth; GFP has learned an enormous amount and gone through "proof of concept", developing approaches in different contexts, and demonstrating the success, impact and sustainability of the model.

SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS

GFP's work can be seen as directly implementing UN Security Council Resolutions 2250 (recognising the positive role youth play in building sustainable peace, and the need for governments and other stakeholders to support the participation of young people in conflict transformation, peace building and countering violence) and 1325 (on the pivotal role women should and do play in conflict management, conflict resolution and sustainable peace).
